ANNOUNCER: America's public forest system is growing and improving year by year. Its National Forests now cover a total of 1.76 million acres and their values and services are steadily being increased.

Supplementing our big National Forests are many fine state forests, and in recent years many small forest tracts have been developed by local community effort for local public use and service.

"Community forests are an old and popularly accepted part of forest conservation," President Roosevelt has said. "They have helped for many years to reduce local taxes by yielding profitable timber crops. They have also provided other benefits such as watershed protection, outdoor recreation. shelter for bird and beast, and permanent jobs through the sustained production of cordwood, posts, telephone poles, railroad ties, Christmas trees, pulpwood, and logs for lumber. I believe, " said President Roosevelt, "Hthat more of our communities could profit economically, socially, and spiritually by ownership and operation of their own forests close at home. I am in favor of more and better community forests," the President concluded. Now it's time to join our friends of the Pine Cone National Forest. In the little town of Winding Creek, as in every American community these days, the war is uppermost in the thoughts of the people. Today the Winding Creek Business men's Club is holding a special meeting to consider the community contributions to the war effort. Ranger Jim Robbins, a member of the club, is there. As we join them, the Club's president, Andy Goodman, has the floor.

All right, men. Let's get down to business here. (NOISE SUBSIDES). . . I recken you all know why we're here today. . To my way of thinkin', this is about as important a meeting as we've ever held. We're goin' to consider what we oughta do, now we're in this war and we want to figure something we can do as a town all joined together besides what we do as individuals. Now, Winding Creek is no big shucks of a community and we're only a small dot even on the State map but we wanta do what we can. .. something that'll help us justify our pride in being Americans and be of some help, however small, in our country's struggle. (APPLAUSE) well, that's the reason we're here today, as I see it. Now we're open for suggestions. What're we going to do as a community? All right, Matt. I see you hand. Folks, let's listen to our club treasurer, and Winding Creek's banker. Matt Singlefield. . .

MATT:

I liked your little talk, Andy. We all want to be patriotic all right, but we got to be practical about this thing. I've lived long enough to know it takes hard-earned money to put over any community project, whatever it is. Seems to me we'd do well just to keep on buying Defense Stumps and Bonds every chance we get—all of us, individually-like we decided at our last meeting. I don't see how we can do any more'n that. Lots of our young folks are already in the armed forces and more will be leavin' soon. If that ain't a real town contribution I don't know what is, and furthermore.

Get to the point, Al. ANDY: 2. I'm talking about Ranger Jim Robbins, fellas. I recken you AL: remember now that he tried way back to get us to establish .5. community forest for Winding Creek. Seems to me he had s · 4. 3. something then and even if we didn't listen so careful before, we ought to hear from him again. -6. Jim Robbins is a good friend of mine, but I don't see what · +70 MATTE 8. a community forest has got to do with this war, and that's why this meeting was called - to find out if the town could -9. 10. do something about the war. 11. Yeah, Matt's right, etc. CROWD: Listen, Matt, and you other fellas, listen to me. I did a 12. AL: little figurin' the other day. We're putting everything 13. we've got into defending this land of ours; to make sure we keep hold of 14. it. Before we get through, we'll more'n likely spend a hundred billion -35. dollars to win this war. That's equal to about $50 for every acre in the 16.

whole country. Now, if our land means that much to us, — if we're willing to spend that much to hold onto it, I figure we ought a be seein' to it that we use it right. Making and keeping our land productive is part of defense, but we ought to be thinkin' beyond that too. Seems to me, we'll have quite a battle on our hands after the shootin' war's over— a battle for peace and prosperity and to keep our way of life workin' right. And that's where a town forest comes in; but I'd rather let Jim Robbins explain about that if you'll just listen to him.

Walt a minute, Jim. That place you're talkin' about. it'd take some money to pay up delinquent taxes and buy up that land, and Winding Creek ain't in no position to. . .

Yes, Matt. It's take some money. But let me tell you something... If somebody buys up that land and strips off what's left this time, probably, it'll be wrecked worse than before. What timer's there now oughtn't be cut for another ten years or more and then cut carefully so's there'll be a growing crop left. After this war is over we can expect a big increase in our tax delinquent areas all over the country.

Such lands are always a social burden, you know that. They lie idle, not producing anything, jobs or timber-just wasted.

If Winding Creek could take over that 800 acres for a community forest the town could develop it- and in time, the folks of Winding Creek would be getting back more money than ever went into the forest and getting it back steady, too.

But, Jim, we got to be economical, like Matt says. Where we goin' to get money to buy up this tax delinquent Land?

If I owned that land I'd donate it to the town. As it is,

I've got 40 acres laying alongside, that Winding Creek's welcome to. As for the tax delinquent land, maybe Matt's bank will lend the town the money? How about that Matt?

I ... I.. don't see how we can. with the loans we been making farmers and all... And anyway, Jim Robbins hasn't shown me what a community forest's got to do with the war.

JIM:

Let me put it this way, Matt. I reckon up to now I've only mentioned the timber we'd get out of a town forest.

But look here. We're sending our young men from Winding Creek into the thick of things on the front lines. How about when they come back nome? We going to have jobs for them? And raw materials for them to work with? A town forest project could sure help. And another thing-sitting right over there is our school principal and next to him is the club chairman of the underpriveleged children's committee — they'll agree that for recreation, and good sound education, a town forest can't be best for youngsters who need all the health and knowledge and, yes, spirit, too, that the outdoors can give 'em at this time. And we've got a Sportsmann group in this club, too. They'd bring game back into a town forest, I bet, if they had one...Like Al says, if we're willing to fight for our land against a foreign enemy, seems to me we ought be fighting for it on the home front too...against the enemies of waste, and need it, and misuse. Here's a piece of wasting land we can do something about. For myself, I'd help make it go every free minute I got.
